Mr. Hill's testimony before the Stanley committee, in which he vigorously combated socialists notions to which certain eminent men have late. It given a species of indorsement, and disposed of erroneous ideas regarding the lease of the ore lands owned by the Great Northern Railway Company to othe United States Steel Corporation, the favorable annual report of the McKay companies, the poor annual statement of the Lackawanna Steel Company, the continuing demand for short term notes at higher prices, the oversubscription of a number of railway bond issues and the improvement in the labor situation as witnessed in the returning to work of many of the striking operatives in Lawrence, Mass, and the negotiations for a better understanding between England and Germany were among the general matters that have in the last few days engrossed financial attention. In no 0... of them could be found any reasonable cause for a further depression in market vaiuations.

Gossip of Wall Street.

The stock exchange has profited from the dissolution of the American Tobacc co Company. Since the dissolution there have been listed a dozen or more securities of the more important components of the trust, while previously the only ones on the big board were American Tobacco preferred, and the 4 and 6 per cent. bonds of the same company But for these new tobacco securities, in fact, the January listings on the stock exchange would have dwindled to an insignificant total, and but for the January transactions would have been considerably smaller than the unbleasingly small total as it was. But bleasingly small total as it was bleasingly small bleasingly small bleasingly small bleasingly small bleasi to an insignificant total, and but for the January transactions would have been considerably smaller than the unpleasingly small total as it was. But while the stock exchange has profited from the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company, it is still in the same position as regards the Standard Oil Company and its former subsidiaries. Transactions in them are confined to the curb market, and in them there has developed an amount of business that stock exchange houses would like

Laymen Should Never

Attempt to write their wills, but should go to their lawyers and have them drawn properly.

Important wills should be examined by more than one attorney. Take, for example, one of the greatest of American lawyers, Samuel J. Tilden. He wrote his own will, and it was defective, and after lengthy and costly litigation was construed so as to defeat his intentions.

A man may think he can save something by drawing his own will, and after his death the court may have to construe it, and the cost would be ten times as much as his attorney would have charged for drawing it in correct form.
